Epson is a well known manufacturer of printers, digital multi-function machines, photocopiers and fax machines. Their product line has a range of options that suits every need. It's no wonder that this company has its eye on the health care field, as they have realized that many people in the medical field could use a machine like the ones they produce. The company decided to approach baby equipment sellers, and then other consumers, to see if they would be interested in an Epson range of baby products, like baby monitors, strollers, and cribs. They were very popular, especially among larger baby product stores like Target and Walgreens, and it seems that the combination of a top-of-the-line printer and baby products was a winning combo. Throughout the years, the company has produced printers that are capable of printing a wide variety of documents, from marketing materials to brochures, and they have now made their printers for consumers so that they can print household prints, like photos and posters.
